

The party has currently gone through the following arcs:

- the original party went to the Sunken Citadel near Oakhurst which is where the Nameless One was buried
- they killed the evil druid manipulating the evil tree that rose from the nameless one's corpse
- A lot of good people died in that fight.
- While doing this, they killed young goblins, thus bringing about the rage of the demon lord Moloch. Kyriakos already had a curse on him by the demons so by also committing a sin, Moloch extended his reach and when Kyriakos fell dead, moloch infested his soul and brought it back to his party
- After this they searched for an Omen Born that is the Mother of All witches.
- They first went to Hillspire where they met with Cpt Sebastian, the captain of the guard in Hillspire. They joined the underground freedom fighting crime ring and robbed Count Dorian's manor. They met with the Masked Prince and agreed to join the Northern Resistance and meet again in Novgor in December. They were ambushed by a warlock named Agatha Blackbane that worked for Clovaris. They killed her.
- On their way to Thurak they went to a couple of villages where the Nameless One had passed by in his weakened form. There they fought some bugbear bandits and Findol, the party's rogue died.
- After that they reached Frostfort where they met Beregond and completed the party's current composition. There they fought a horde of zombies that was attacking the fort and saved it. They killed the necromancer responsible. They thought Renn put him there but in reality he was planted by Clovaris to raise a sense of uncertainty in the North. Unbeknownst to them he was under the Nameless One's influence.
- They went to the Frayr's Monastery, Thurak in search for a cure for Kyriakos' curse. They found a piece of an ancient prophecy that led them to the Omen Born that is akin to Baba Yaga the mother of all Hags. She gave them a pendant that keeps the curse at bay and the party recklessly agreed to kill the five demons for her. She took a tooth from each one.
- They then went back to Hillspire only to find out that Clovaris sent his minion Arthur Blackbane to be the ruler of Hillspire in order to "upgrade" it and make it safer. In reality he wants to set up an Erevium machine below Hillspire.
- They left to go to Novgor where an imperial wedding will be held and below the Empire's noses a meeting with trusted leaders of the North for the creation of the Northern Coalition to start the revolution.
- On their way there they went to the Forbidden Forest. A forest that sits on top of a crack between this realm and the Ashpit. There, a fort of the Knights of the Blazing sun was built ages ago, sealing this rift. The party met the knights and with their aid summoned the first minion of Moloch with their ritual. The Watcher.
- After slaying the watcher and obtaining a marble that allows them to see through the eyes of a powerful demon nearby but the demon can see them too, they started their way to Novgor.